The Silk Road Journey

Mark your calendars for one of the biggest celebrations yet! CBC will celebrate its 30th Anniversary by “traveling” the Silk Road. See page 2 for more information.

President's Message

*By Herbert Chiu
CBC President*

Dear CBC Members and Friends,

Happy Year of the Tiger! Wishing you all a happy, healthy and auspicious 2022!

It is my privilege and honor to serve CBC as its 30th President. My previous two terms as President were in the years of 1992 and 1999. I am fortunate to be able to serve alongside two amazing individuals, Co-Vice Presidents Midji Rovetta and Teresa Eng (see page 3), for this milestone year of CBC.

The pandemic has certainly changed the world and every aspect of our lives. Non-profit organizations and their volunteers are no exception. In person community projects, events and fundraisers were largely things of the past in the last two years; however, CBC and its volunteers' spirit and energy are still high, using skills and creativity to continue to serve the community in areas of education, health and business. CBC will continue to nurture the next generation leaders and be a strong voice against injustices in the API communities. I encourage you to join the CBC team and commit yourselves as individuals to make a better community together!

Experience the Silk Road Journey

By Spring Celebration Committee

We invite you to join us on a Silk Road Journey! On Saturday, April 30, 2022, from 6 to 9 pm, the journey will begin at the Pearl Bay Restaurant in Fremont.

The theme was inspired by a trip with some CBC members and their friends 3 years ago. It was a culturally rich and amazing travel through China along the original Silk Road. The Masters of Ceremony, Kathy Kimberlin and Charles Liu, invite you to join us to experience colorful culture, rich entertainment & music and beautiful large format photos taken at monasteries, lakes, deserts, and the Rainbow Mountains of China on the old Silk Road.

This is the 30th anniversary of CBC's founding. It will be celebrated with photos spanning 30 years of great work, applauding the work of so many and remembering and celebrating those who are no longer with us.

And as always, we have awards and folks to recognize!

The Distinguished Community Service Award goes to Kathy Kimberlin. Her commitment and participation with so many local non-profits and committees is a fine example of "community service".

Wilson Hu will be awarded the Volunteer of the Year. His work as secretary of regular meeting agendas and minutes is consistent and dependable. His feedback and hands on work as CBC transitioned to a new website resulted in a smooth transition and a rich website to post events, archive photos, track award recipients and serve as an organized repository of all CBC things.

Our event wouldn't be complete without nominating and appreciating beneficiaries who do meaningful work in our community. CBC is excited to announce that the two worthy organizations are: New Day for Children and Toishan Benevolent Association.

The organization New Day for Children helps children who have suffered sex trafficking and other abuses with mental health support and sometimes relocation efforts regionally and nationwide (MORE INFO HERE).

Toishan Benevolent Association works hands on in Asian communities throughout Alameda County, and assembles volunteer patrols in Oakland Chinatown to promote safety in numbers for the local Asian residents (VIDEO HERE).

Wear your silk or gala attire and be prepared for an entertaining evening of riding along the CBC Silk Road, a journey that you will not forget!

Spring Celebration Sponsorships

To support this annual fundraising event, as well as CBC programs that serve youth, seniors, families and the community, you are invited to attend this fun packed culturally rich event. You are also encouraged to become an event sponsor, offer a monetary donation and donate raffle items. CBC would be honored to have your support! The sponsorship levels are as follows:

Platinum

Messages from CBC Co-Presidents

By Midji Rovetta, CBC Co-President

Happy New Year! Wishing all of you a better, brighter and prosperous 2022!

It is an honor to serve as the Co-VP for CBC this year. The first of two items on my CBC wish list and as a Co-Chair of the Youth Committee, is to bring back our signature program, TYLP, to an in-person meeting this summer, unless there are unforeseen new regulations that prohibit it to happen.

The second item is still related to our youth education and the quality of education in schools. I envision that CBC can be the voice of parents (or grandparents) in Fremont, including Asian American parents, who are too shy to speak up in public, to question the education system in FUSD and demand higher, better quality of education, to speak up against race stereotyping and sexualizing our children at school. It is about taking back parental rights; we need to support our families and enable them to pass down family values to their children. I hope with your support and teamwork, we can make this happen.

By Teresa Eng, CBC Co-President

2020 and 2021 were memorable years due to the global pandemic which shaped our behavior and outlook. We adjusted to the new reality by adopting new hobbies and work environments along with a new sense of purpose and I am no exception.

I have lived in Fremont for over 25 years but have just discovered CBC during the COVID rage. Since I joined in 2019, I have met the founders and other dedicated members who have been with the organization at the time of inception and continue to demonstrate fervent support for the Fremont Asian community.

I have served on the board for a few months and am honored to have this opportunity to become an officer at the beginning of this year.

In my view, Fremont has been experiencing hyper growth but, in contrast, a greater number of people in our community are adversely affected by the pandemic, especially in regards to their mental health.

I will continue to carry on CBC's mission and vision with an attention to advocating for mental well-being for all age groups. I am a big believer in building partnerships and connecting the right people to accomplish our goals.

I also see, in the next year, a strong electrical footprint for CBC via the many digital channels available to allow our members and other community members to collaborate and effectively serve our city of Fremont.

I am looking forward to an exciting year ahead and wish everyone a healthy and prosperous Year of the Tiger!

CBC Hosts Hometown Vigil for Michelle Go

By Kathy Kimberlin, CBC Board Member

On Saturday, January 22, 2022, Citizens for Better Community hosted a candlelight vigil to celebrate the life of Michelle Go, a member of our Fremont community who was recently pushed to her death in front of a subway train in New York.

Michelle grew up and attended school in Fremont, leaving behind a legacy as a deeply empathetic and compassionate advocate for those most in need. Michelle will be missed by family and her many friends who have called to urgently address the lack of mental healthcare for underserved communities.

Several elected officials, community leaders and our own CBC president, Herbert Chiu, spoke of the deep sadness and grief this brings to our community and to Michelle's friends and family. Alameda County Supervisor David Haubert's staff shared "This reminds us there is still much work to be done in our communities in addressing mental health issues, and that is directly under the Supervisor's purview. He is committed to working toward solutions so that tragedies like this do not continue."

Michelle's celebration of life and candle vigil in Fremont at Central Park was somber, quiet and respectfully attended by Fremont Mayor Lily Mei, Councilmembers Salwan, Shao, Keng and Jones, Supervisor David Haubert and approximately 100 community members and leaders.

The event closed with a beautiful song recorded by Idea Band and folks lined up to sign a framed photo of Michelle as a keepsake for her family.

CBC Gavel Club Contest

By Midji Rovetta,
CBC Co-President & Youth Group Coordinator

CBC will be hosting its 2022 Gavel Club Contest on Saturday, February 26, 2022, from 1 to 4:30 pm. This contest will take place outdoors (Quarry Lakes) to make sure that we have continuous fresh air circulation, especially during this pandemic. We hope to have all 21 students participate in this contest.

There will be a Middle School and High School category, each having a sub-category of Prepared Speech and Evaluation. Two winners will be chosen in each category to represent our club in the Inter Gavel Club contest to be held on Saturday, March 26, 2022, where 6 clubs will be competing this year.

Since this is an outdoor event, and as part of the requirement of the Inter Gavel Club contest, the contestants will deliver his or her speech wearing a clear plastic shield, generously donated by CBC President Dr. Herbert Chiu, or without a mask. As you may know, facial expression is one of the most important elements of speech presentation, to express emotion and other non-verbal communication. The speech presentation area will be at least 6 feet away from the audience.

How Do You Use Toastmasters Skills in Real Life?

By Marty Chiang, CBC Adult Toastmasters

It is a long puzzle for Toastmasters club members to figure out how skills that you learned from the Toastmasters apply to real life. It is an unsolved mystery. However, as we attend the meeting for a longer time we end up improving ourselves and potentially gain a more balanced life and brighter future.

There are a number of must-possess fundamental skills in the Toastmasters meeting that I would like to point out. There are voluntary role taking, public speaking, multitasking, time management, leadership, speech writing, etc.

1. Voluntary Role Taking - This is a step-up behavior. Through this skill, you will learn to take initiative of something you are not familiar or uncomfortable with. This can train you to go outside of your comfort zone to get used to many challenges in the future.
2. Public Speaking - It seems easy to say but when it comes to random speaking occasions, you might not be ready for it. The public speaking really needs preparation, a lot of practice, and getting accustomed to. It is another way to challenge your comfort zone.
3. Multitasking - In today's workplace, it often requires this skill. You can be working on a team project assignment, talking to a customer on the phone, and checking on the email for other tasks at the same time. Many of the Toastmasters club meetings need you to take multiple roles at the same time and are preparing you for a situation like this.

4. Time management - In Toastmasters meetings, making it on time is essential. Not only the speech has to be within a certain time frame but also the meeting cannot go over time. The more you attend the meeting, the better time management you will comprehend. Eventually, you learn to value your time and others. This will help you to be more efficient.
5. Leadership - Toastmasters offer a variety of officer roles like the President, VP of Education, VP of Membership, VP of Public Relations, Secretary, Treasurer, Sergeant at Arms. These roles will make you deal with the club matters and annual timelines. However, do not be upset if you are not getting any of these roles because there are meeting roles like Toastmaster, General Evaluator, Speech Evaluators, Timer, Grammarian, Table Topics Masters, etc. in every meeting that requires communication and negotiation skills which will help you to develop your leadership skill.
6. Speech Writing - When you give a speech, it often needs preparation. Then, speech writing will be a necessity for you. You will learn to do a rough draft, changing paragraphs, adding transition phrases, rehearsing a few times, and making more necessary changes. You will transform into a better speaker and a more thoughtful and organized person.

These 6 skills are the most important skills when you join Toastmasters. You will routinely implement them and practice them to make them better. When it comes to a job performance, it will invisibly transform you to a better speaker in the meeting as well as giving presentations, multitasking, leading your colleagues through an assigned project, and taking initiative on the company events. In essence, Toastmasters is promising its mission to develop yourself, improve yourself and raise your self-confidence. It will lead you to a fulfilled future.

* * * * *

The best way to really know if Toastmasters is for you is to come and see a meeting in action. Meetings are held (virtually) every Saturday except for holiday weekends. Guests and visitors are always welcome! For more information about this club, visit HERE.

CBC Toastmasters Club Winner Advances to Area Level Contest

On January 22, 2022, CBC (Citizens for Better Communicators) Toastmasters held an International Speech and Evaluation Speech Contest at the Club level. Justin Paras, CBC Toastmaster and winner of the Club Level speech contest, shares his speech titled "Voice". Justin will advance to the Area Level Contest on February 25, 2022.

Voice

(by Justin Paras, CBC Toastmaster)

Was there a day that changed your life forever?

July 15, 2012 changed my family's life forever.

It was a Sunday. I was home with my parents and my sister. I was getting ready for work the next day. My parents were in the garage having a typical conversation.

But something changed.

I heard my dad say to my mom, "Why are you talking that way?"

It sounded as if they were fighting, which was rare in their 30 years of marriage.

Then my dad said, "Let me see your face."

I got concerned and rushed to the garage. My parents were standing face to face, with my dad holding my mom by her face, as he looked closely at her. She looked disoriented, was sweating, and the left side of her face was drooping.

Dad turned to me and said, "Call 9-1-1"

That was the day my mom suffered a massive stroke.

A stroke that left her in a coma for 3 days. A stroke that left her paralyzed on the right side of her body, unable to walk, unable to swallow food, and most devastating of all, unable to speak.

Can you imagine not being able to speak?

Not being able to use your voice? Mom worked for the post office for 22 years.

In her last position there, she worked at the front of the post office, using her voice to help customers.

Outside of work, she used her voice in her passion for cooking, to share her recipes with those looking to replicate her delicious dishes.

And at home, Mom used her voice to care for my sister, my brother and I, to teach us, and of course, occasionally, even as adults, to scold us.

And now, that voice was gone.

Our voices are so precious; so unpredictable.

They can be impacted by the weather, anxiety, sickness, and a slew of other factors.

For any of you who have lost your voice for even a few moments, you understand how uncomfortable, frustrating, and disempowering that can be.

The following months after Mom's stroke were the toughest of my life. I was in a dark place.

I was either stuck in the past, thinking what I could have done to help Mom more as I believed the stroke was caused by stress and fatigue.

Or, I was stuck in the future, dreading what it might hold, as the doctors told us Mom might need to use a feeding tube and/or possibly live in a long-term care facility for the rest of her life.

But it was during those times, that the voices of others gave us comfort and peace.

My cousin, Alma, used her voice to tell me, "Justin, this is your opportunity to care for and give back to your mom for everything she has done for you."

My Uncle Chris used his voice to tell me, "When you're stuck in the past or in the future, the devil is with you. But when you live in the present, God is with you."

One of the hospital janitors used his voice to tell my dad, "Everything will be ok. Keep praying."

Sometimes you don't realize the powerful impact of your voice. Words cannot express how grateful I am to those who used their voices to help my family get through those dark days.

Over the following months, Mom did extensive physical, occupational, and speech therapy.

Her doctors and care team used their voices to inspire Mom and to educate and train us on her condition and how to care for her.

Eventually, Mom learned how to swallow food again, and started to say a few words, but she was far from a complete recovery. She still could not walk on her own nor speak coherently.

She needed us to be her voice.

This situation opened my eyes in new ways.

Outside of the hospital, in the community, at my church, and in my workplace, I started to notice people were looking for individuals who were willing to use their voices to serve others.

I vowed to use my voice more as Mom's experience taught me that the ability to speak is something to be grateful for, to be celebrated, to be used.

The more I used my voice, the more fulfilled I felt.

Mom eventually came home, where she is today. While she is dependent on us to help her get around and care for her, and her speech has not improved much, she has found ways to enjoy her life, inspiring us with her sense of humor and ability to smile through adversity.

She has also found a way to communicate in her own special way, using a limited set of words and a lot of emotive expressions and gestures.

We continue to have many beautiful moments as a family, which include my parents' 5 young, energetic, and caring granddaughters, who don't need to be told to use their voices. Being around them is Mom's favorite form of therapy.

Join me on this journey and realize how precious your voice is. Let's use our voices as much as we can in our personal lives, schools, workplaces, places of worship, and organizations to bring opportunity, comfort, hope, to inspire, to educate, to train, and to serve others.

Someone out there needs to hear your voice.

While Mom can no longer cook, she has picked up a new favorite hobby: Rooting for the Golden State Warriors.

If she could speak to all of you today, she would be rooting for you too, encouraging you to, "Use your voice."

All Good Speeches Call for a Good Recipe

By Johann Pacla, CBC Toastmaster

As 2020 happened, and the world began to "shelter-in-place", when it came to food and dining, all of us began gravitating towards one of two things: an increase in usage of takeout delivery services like DoorDash or we decided to become better home chefs. If you gravitated towards the journey to become a better home cook, it quickly became evident that all good dishes call for a recipe - you can't just throw random ingredients, like apples, in your spaghetti and expect the dish to taste divine. Also, all good recipes call for just the right amount of each ingredient to make the dish shine.

In a similar fashion, there are many "ingredients," that make up a captivating and memorable speech. CBC Toastmasters club champion, Justin Paras, demonstrated his ability to deliver an impactful speech by exhibiting multiple high level skills, which he has masterfully developed over years of practice and refinement. While there are many components that Justin executed, there are 3 key ingredients that really made his speech shine and those ingredients include a captivating story to engage and capture the audience's attention, a key point he wanted this audience to takeaway, and sound fundamentals, which helped provide structure and organization.

People love good stories. Justin's ability to be vulnerable and vividly describe his mom's stroke kept me engaged and wanting to hear how his story would unfold. His use of descriptive language helped me feel like I was in the room when everything was happening. From the beginning to the end of his story and later his transition to another part of his speech, I was hooked. Use stories within your speeches to captivate your audience. Most excellent speeches I have been fortunate to hear, not only offer a great way to start a speech, but they can be woven into the speech itself to illustrate points and appeal to the emotions of the audience.

In today's digital age, we are bombarded with content causing our attention spans to be pulled in many directions. It's critical for content creators to create high level content with the idea of "what's in it for me (the audience)" in mind, and for a speech writer, that concept is no different. Justin demonstrates this skill in all his speeches, including his 2022 club winning speech. Justin's speech reminds us that we all have voices and our voices have the power to impact others.

The last key ingredient, but probably the most important, is a solid structure. With any activity, in order to excel, you need solid fundamentals, and speech writing is no different. A powerful speech needs good structure, which means your speech should have a beginning, a middle, and an ending. This structure helps the audience understand what is going on, and helps them flow through your speech without causing confusion. In school, many of us were taught that an essay has an introduction, core paragraphs, and a conclusion. While it may seem cliché, it is that solid structure that helps readers and listeners navigate through your journey that you are sharing with the world.

One of the most powerful takeaways in Justin's speech, "Voice," was that we all have voices and our voices have the power to impact others. Our lives are unique, and many of us can share valuable information and stories to help people by lifting them up. It's imperative we share this knowledge with others through writing and delivering speeches. While there are many ways to construct a speech, ones that excel follow a specific formula that has proven to be effective and reliable. By using stories, understanding your audience's needs, and practicing sound fundamentals, you too can write speeches that will leave a lasting impression.

Iron Sharpens Iron

By Johann Pacla, CBC Toastmaster

(Note: in reference to Ravi's speech who was a Guest Toastmaster at CBC's Club Level Contest on January 22, 2022)

There is a popular proverb that is often quoted when it comes to personal improvement: "As iron sharpens iron, so one [person] sharpens another." The concept of "iron sharpening iron" implies at least two pieces of iron. It would be impossible for one piece of iron to become sharper without the presence of the another.

This concept is applicable to all skills including speech writing and speech delivery. Behind every great speaker, are a series of evaluations that helped "sharpen" that speaker to who he or she is today.

It's important to note that all evaluations aren't created equal. As evaluators, we must provide solid feedback to the presenter so that he or she knows how to improve. CBC's very own Seng Hua's evaluation style will help Ravi become an even stronger speaker. Here are some of the things we can take away from Seng's evaluation method:

BE SPECIFIC: Seng provided very specific examples on what he liked about Ravi's speech. Being specific showed that Seng was engaged throughout the entire speech, in addition, he also made it crystal clear to Ravi what elements were executed well and what are some opportunities for improvement.

BE ENTHUSIASTIC: Being enthusiastic when talking about what went well will motivate the speaker to come back and continue to do more speeches. Compliments are flattering, make us feel good, and will push us to do more speeches. Seng's opening and genuine reaction about how much he enjoyed the speech would make any speaker feel good about what that speaker was able to accomplish.

BE ORGANIZED: Being organized might seem obvious, but it never hurts to hear this tip again. It's always great practice to use the sandwich technique during your evaluation. Create two/three sections, one for positive things, another for things that can be improved on, and a third to leave the evaluation on a positive note. Because evaluation time is limited, you need to be both precise and concise when delivering your evaluation.

Delivering constructive feedback can be scary and intimidating, but can be mastered by doing evaluations consistently and practicing Seng's methods noted above.

Congratulations to Seng Hua who was the Evaluation Contest winner of CBC (Citizens for Better Communicators) Toastmasters Contest! Seng will advance to the Area Level Contest Club level with Justin Paras on February 25, 2022. Good luck to both!
